Hello Nadine –

I have a question regarding the HDM tablets that I am hoping you can answer easily and soon. We understand that there will not be any commercial lots available for this product on the action due date. Could you please explain why there are no launch lots available? In addition, can you please indicate approximately when commercial lots will be available? Finally, if no lots will be available for an extended period of time (2 months or more); please explain why. We understand there was some previous discussion of these issues but we need up to date information.

Thank you very much,
Jennifer
